Always be in touch with your co-workers from the virtual office One of Lito's main characteristics is that it is organized around channels, which are like rooms in an office. You can have different channels where you hang out with your teammates or have online meetings, and you can also invite others directly. You can organize your channels and rename them as you wish, for any kind of purpose. For example, you can have one named "lobby", for anyone to join and talk about whatever they wish. Or a "do not disturb" channel, where people who join are working hard and do not wish to be interrupted. Whatever your needs, Lito can provide that. Talk the talk, from the comfort of your house As a remote worker or a remote team, it is fundamental to have proper communication means. Lito makes that process easier, providing a way for conversations to happen with drop-in and drop-out access, and even granting a way to share your screen with other people.
